

CITY PASTOR.

A Satisfactory Explanatory Letter. To the Editor of the Evening Telegraph:— On the 24th ultimo a warrant was issued for my arrest, in which I was charged with embezzlement, on the oath of Charles C. Wilson, local editor of Forney's Press.

The statements of the witnesses ex parte for the prosecution having been laid before the public with much misrepresentation, no doubt arising from ignorance of the facts in the case, injurious to my personal and public character, you will confer a favor by allowing me space in your columns for the following statement:—

At our first or second week in April, a Mrs. Marshall came to my house to represent the case of a poor soldier's family of her acquaintance, I sympathized deeply with the case as narrated, and expressed my regret that I had no funds to supply their wants. My treasury was and is yet overdrawn to the amount of $300. At last she told me that this poor woman was her own sister. I called Mrs. McElwhee, and asked her to give her some clothing for this case, a large bundle of which was made up and sent with Mrs. Marshall to her sister, Mrs. Dowell. Mrs. McElwhee has stated on oath that this bundle was worth at least $50. We told her to bring her sister up the next day, and we would have ready everything we could get in the house to meet her case. They came in the evening, and we literally loaded both with food and clothing. This evening Mrs. Dowell handed me the following letter to read. She said it was an appeal written by herself to one of the ladies of the Union Benevolent Association, asking for a dollar's worth of groceries; but they did not give her any aid:—

At the head of this letter I wrote:— "SOLDIERS' FAMILIES."

To the Editor of the Press:— Sir:—I beseech you to publish this letter by way of appeal. I am acquainted with its facts, and a mere distressing case is not on record.

As at the foot:— Funds left at the Press office, or sent to "City Pastor," No. 124 Lombard street, will be immediately applied to relieve this case. C. W. PASTOR.

I read what I had written to Mrs. Dowell and her sister, and gave them the letter to take to the Press office.

Next morning the letter was in the Press and that forenoon funds were left at my house "discretionary."

That afternoon I hastened to Mrs. Dowell's, and gave her $10. The carriage hire, referred to so sneeringly by the prosecution and the papers, happened in this way:—

Mrs. Dowell said she lived far down Ninth street, away out in the lots, a great way beyond the prison. The day was damp and murky, and after a heavy rain, and she could not get there without a carriage, and that end of the street for a long way, I had other duties to attend to that afternoon, which could not be omitted. To procure a carriage under these circumstances, even from the terminus of the Third Street Railway, uncertain how far beyond this I had to go, my time, to say nothing of inconvenience and expense, would amount to a great deal. I hired a carriage and paid for it, and did not get it down to Mrs. Dowell's account. I was returning to it the morning I gave her the last thirty dollars (May 22). I had just said that I directed a lady to call on her, who gave her $5. Next day, or perhaps, the second or third day, when more funds had been sent me, I wrote a note to Mrs. Dowell, in which I stated that I had given her $5, and that I had not seen her since. I had just said that I directed a lady to call on her, who gave her $5. Next day, or perhaps, the second or third day, when more funds had been sent me, I wrote a note to Mrs. Dowell, in which I stated that I had given her $5, and that I had not seen her since.

After I had ordered the "insult" from my house, I gave Mrs. Dowell $30, stating that I had not charged the carriage hire to her.

I was anxious to give Mrs. Dowell some money to relieve her immediate wants. I wanted, moreover, to see her condition, and learn her need, and worthiness to have a dollar in her hand. Next day, I directed a lady to call on her, who gave her $5. Next day, or perhaps, the second or third day, when more funds had been sent me, I wrote a note to Mrs. Dowell, in which I stated that I had given her $5, and that I had not seen her since.

How exactly this letter corresponds, in its statements, to my own explanatory letter to the Press, which Mr. Wilson had in his hands twenty-four hours at least before he had the warrant issued for my arrest, will be seen by comparing them.

Here is the letter in full. It was published by Mr. Wilson, though not in the Press. It is dated Saturday, May 25, as testimony for the prosecution:—

Treasurer and Clerks at Press Office:—The money acknowledged as received for Mrs. H. D. were not returned to her. Several of the letters sent to me for Mrs. H. D., or if your judgment deems it best to any other needy case, in your book, "Mrs. H. D.," were not returned to me, and I executed my judgment and discretion in giving other cases as needy and deserving as hers. Besides, in regard to Mrs. H. D., I should give her at a time, and how often, I am always to be the judge.

It would be no wonder if she were to come to me to give her $10 at a time. Whatever is done Mrs. D. shall have a claim of clothing and food, and groceries, and her husband at work. I deem it not prudent in her, for other reasons, also, which I will not write to you, to give her $5. I am, very respectfully, C. W. PASTOR.

Even if she were to come to me to give her $10 at a time, I would not be guided, nor always have acted according to circumstances. Here is a woman to whom I have given $10, and she has a claim of clothing and food, and groceries, and her husband at work. I deem it not prudent in her, for other reasons, also, which I will not write to you, to give her $5. I am, very respectfully, C. W. PASTOR.

I have this morning said Mrs. H. D. $50 more. The balance of the acknowledged $100, "discretionary," given to cases as needy—perhaps more needy—than hers, from what I have heard to day and last evening, there must have been very favorable and unjust impressions made on the minds of the contributors in the case. The explanation herewith furnished (and some more can be verbally furnished, will I hope, relieve your minds of any unfavorable impressions which may have been made.

WILLIAM McELWHEE, Your, etc.

This letter, written before the contributors since the 25th of May. Not one of them has contradicted its statements. It is only one heard from approves of City Pastor's discrimination and discretion.

At this time, I have used $50, and acknowledged a "balance." I never refused to pay over the warrant of $21.50, on the ground of which the warrant was issued. I returned the balance as a hundred dollars to other needy cases at discretion.

I have receipts from four persons to whom I gave the "balance." All things taken into account, Mrs. Dowell received thirty of a hundred dollars.

The food and clothing might very moderately be set down at $40. This, let it be remembered, was taken from the GENERAL DISTRIBUTION, whereas, in fact, from other persons I had used $50, and acknowledged it made. To get $21.50 back in that fund to pay it to those poor from whom I received it, had been a wrong, very simple justice. Was it not? We claim the right to do this.

Miss Moorey, my assistant, has testified before an Advertiser that this was our uniform method of distributing the money. This was the best in the city, and certain contributions for special cases, yet retaining it to Pastor to use his own discretion in its application to other needy cases at discretion.

The remainder of my statement is easily written. A man named Perkins came to my house on May 21, in company with another man named McPeckers. Perkins presented a printed slip, and asked me if I recognized that it was my acknowledgment in the Press of the moneys received. I replied "Yes." Have you paid it all to Mrs. Dowell? he asked. "No, sir," I said. "Will you pay it?" he demanded. "It depends on circumstances," I replied; "I may or may not pay all or part of it, at my discretion."

I have explained what discretion I had exercised, and what I had the privilege to exercise, etc. The next morning Mrs. Dowell called on my request, and I paid her $30, and showed her two letters and read them to her—in which it was stated "for Mrs. H. D.," or for any other needy case, according to your judgment." Perkins, at the same time, also saw these letters, and read them. The same evening Perkins and his friend McPeckers called. He spoke $21.50 to me to pay on my acknowledgment. That morning I had left my explanatory letter at the Press office, in which I had referred to this balance, and as he had twice previously inquired me—so much so that I had come to my house to go out to it I was done talking to Mrs. D.—and not feeling inclined to be further annoyed with him, in my own defense, I told him that I refused to answer him any more questions concerning the case, and referred him to my letter left that morning at the office of the Press.

The following extract from the Public Ledger of this morning will show the conclusion of the case:— On Saturday District Attorney Mann called the case of the Rev. William McElwhee (City Pastor), charged with embezzlement. The case was partially heard on the previous Saturday, and then postponed to enable the District Attorney to examine Mrs. Dowell, the lady on whose behalf the collections were made. On Saturday, Mr. Mann stated that he had examined the case, and satisfied himself as to the manner in which Mr. McElwhee had performed the duty of distributing this particular charity, and he was convinced that no crime had been committed in relation to the funds in dispute.

Mr. McElwhee was not a clerk, agent, or servant of the party, and could not be responsible under the act of Assembly or the common law, nor could he be held for larceny as he had not appropriated from this, it was due to Mr. McElwhee to say that he meant no wrong. He believed that he was doing his duty to the poor, and he acted conscientiously in the distribution of this fund, as he believed that he had the right to exercise a discretion.

Mr. Jinkins, on behalf of Mrs. McElwhee disclaimed an intention to defraud Mrs. Dowell. He felt, however, that under the peculiar circumstances of the case, and the grave charge that had been preferred against him, that his public reputation was injured. Mr. Jinkins referred to the fact that Mr. McElwhee had relieved deserving poor out of the fund which formed the subject of dispute here. Mr. McElwhee was discharged.

It has been cleared away the mists of this case. Never was a man so unjustly, so unkindly assailed. We ask simply to be left in peace, and to have our published statements very unjust and injurious to our private and public character. Some of the statements were so untrue as to be both scandalous and libelous, and we will wait for the law, hoping that both sides will be given to the people, and let them be the judges.

The above is officially correct. It is our public acquittal by official authority, not on the ground of a legal technicality, but on the principle of righteousness and truth. WILLIAM McELWHEE, City Pastor.
